Module Topic Areas and Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs)

In accordance with online best practices as outlined by Online Learning Consortium and Quality Matters guidelines, all modules should include the following:

- Module Overview / Welcome
- Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs)
- Course Objectives Aligning with SLOs
- Instructional Materials
- Activities and Assessments
- Module Summary and Next Steps

What follows are the topics formatted into a course map where you will work with your assigned ID as you review Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs) and their associated course objectives.

Building the map further, you will identify instructional materials (readings, media, etc.). Please include guiding questions or focus statements to provide context for each item. Introduce the materials with a brief narrative that explains its purpose and value to the student. When possible, connect it to course topics, objectives, activities, and assignments.

Additionally, describe the activities and assessments you will use. Once you decide on the activities, consider your instructions and what you are looking for from each student to add here.

Lastly, consider how you will wrap up the module, summarizing key elements of learning. Prepare your students for the next steps in their learning experience by including a brief narrative of how this topic connects to the next or prompting students to make their own connections with concepts from module to module.

The Summary / Next Steps information can be added as sub-module or included in the course as a prepopulated / scheduled news item. Use this space to create a draft of that information.
